

Health Equity Webinar Series: Ensuring a Voice at the Table for All

Health equity is the right of all members of society to achieve the best possible health and to not have their health negatively affected by avoidable, unfair, and unjust policies or conditions within the system in which they live. However, not everyone has a voice at the table - especially underrepresented groups who are socioeconomically disadvantaged or who have been victims of historical injustices. Inequitable distribution of or access to social, economic, and health resources can affect a groups' attitude, behavior, and health outcomes. Register your chapter each month to participate in a national discussion on health equity relevant topics with a national expert in the field! Intended learner objectives and pre-webinar materials will be emailed to you once your registration is confirmed. Feel free to email reach.chair@amsa.org with any questions. So, as so aptly stated in the Unnatural Causes documentary, "Is inequality making us sick?"

Too often as health professions students, we have a myopic view of our place in the health care system and we focus primarily on issues that have to do with our medical education and individual patient care. Learn how to be a patient advocate and how to enact positive change at the community or population level to have both a far-reaching and long-lasting impact on health outcomes. This discussion webinar series was initiated to widen the scope of our vision to include social determinants of health and health inequities in our view of patient health influences. This webinar series is an opportunity to provide student leaders with the education and tools to bring about health equity change in their local communities!

Dr. Camara Jones MD, MPH, PhD (featured in Unnatural Causes), Research Director on Social Determinants of Health and Equity in the Epidemiology and Analysis Program Office at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Dr. Jones is a family physician and epidemiologist whose work focuses on the impacts of racism on the health and well-being of the nation. She seeks to broaden the national health debate to include not only universal access to high quality health care, but also attention to the social determinants of health (including poverty) and the social determinants of equity (including racism).
