

THE CHALLENGE

Premedical students face considerable barriers in education today:

- Minimal support in preparing for medical school
- Mounting debt
- Balancing school life, social life, and work life
- Rapid evolution of technology
- Increased competitive environment
- Drug use and other self-destructive behaviors
- Expectation of continual growth in the breadth and depth of clinical knowledge

AMSA National offers colleges and universities strategic partnerships designed to address the challenges their students face.

THE RESPONSE

Let's solve the challenges facing premedical students together.

Partner with AMSA National to give your students an edge in developing skills, knowledge, and leadership to enhance their chances of getting into medical school.

Become an Institutional Partner for your students, for your school, and for the future of health care.
