The Affordable Care Act faces its third major challenge in the Supreme Court. The hearing date isn't confirmed but arguments could be held in the fall following a decision in spring or summer of 2021. The case is brought forth by Republican state officials. They argue that it is unconstitutional when in 2017, when Congress zeroed out the penalty for not getting health insurance. Currently, the law remains intact but faces an uncertain future.

Example news item two
News Source 2
An updated recommendation by the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force suggests screening for hepatitis C in all adults age 18 to 79. Those with the illness may not know they have it because they are not sick. Screening allows for early detection and effective treatment. Injection drug use is the most important risk factor when it comes to hepatitis C. In the US, there's been an increase in HCV among young adults who inject drugs. This new recommendation will also be cost-effective.

Globally, the number of coronavirus cases hits 90,000 with a total of 3,000 deaths. The number of cases in China slows down while there's a rise in Iran, South Korea and Italy. Iran reported more than 2,300 cases with a death toll of 77. South Korea reports more than 5,000 cases with 31 deaths. Italy has more than 2,000 cases with a reported death toll of 52. The World Health Organization says these countries are now its greatest concern.

Doctors at the Casey Eye Institute in Oregon are trying to use CRISPR gene editing directly in the eye of a patient nearly blind from a rare genetic disorder. The patients selected for this phase of the trial are older, and their disease has progressed to the point that they are almost completely blind. Once safety and efficacy have been established, researchers hope to expand trials to include younger patients.

After a Health and Human Services whistleblower alleged that HHS workers without training or protective equipment were sent to meet U.S. evacuees from China known to have been exposed to COVID-19, the agency says it is conducting an internal investigation.
